

Positive verbs that start with E

40 verbs with meanings and examples. Updated 10 October 2026. Free to print and share in a classroom.

Ease v.

To make pain, effort, or difficulty less severe.

A clear checklist can ease the pressure of a complicated move.

Economize v.

To reduce waste and use money or resources carefully.

The theater will economize by repairing costumes between productions.

Edify v.

To improve someone's knowledge, judgment, or character.

The curator hoped the exhibition would edify every visitor.

Educate v.

To help someone gain knowledge, skill, or understanding.

The exhibit aims to educate visitors about local wetlands.

Elevate v.

To raise the quality, position, or spirit of something.

Specific praise can elevate a useful contribution without exaggerating it.

Elucidate v.

To make a complex subject clear and understandable.

A simple diagram helped elucidate the water cycle.

Emancipate v.

To free someone from unjust control or restriction.

The reform helped emancipate workers from exploitative contracts.

Embolden v.

To give someone courage and confidence to act.

The early success may embolden more residents to volunteer.

Embrace v.

To accept, support, or welcome someone or something willingly.

The school chose to embrace a more inclusive admissions policy.

Emerge v.

To come into view or develop into a clearer, stronger state.

New leaders began to emerge during the community project.

Empathize v.

To understand and share another person's feelings.

Good counselors empathize without assuming every experience is the same.

Empower v.

To give someone confidence, authority, or practical ability.

The course will empower residents to test their own water.

Enable v.

To give someone or something the means to act or succeed.
Captions enable more visitors to follow the presentation.

Encourage v.

To give someone confidence, support, or a reason to continue.
The tutor used a small success to encourage another attempt.

Endear v.

To cause someone to be loved or warmly liked.
His patience with beginners endeared him to the whole class.

Endorse v.

To express clear approval or support.
Health groups endorse the new smoke-free playground rule.

Endow v.

To provide a person or institution with a lasting gift or quality.
The bequest will endow a yearly scholarship for nurses.

Energize v.

To give someone or something fresh energy and enthusiasm.
A brisk team walk can energize the afternoon workshop.

Enfranchise v.

To give people rights, especially the right to vote.
The new constitution will enfranchise citizens previously denied a voice.

Enhance v.

To improve the quality, value, or appeal of something.
Better lighting will enhance both safety and comfort.

Enjoy v.

To take pleasure or satisfaction in something.
Visitors enjoy reading beneath the old oak trees.

Enlighten v.

To give someone greater knowledge or understanding.
The archive can enlighten students about the town's history.

Enliven v.

To make something more cheerful, interesting, or energetic.
Colorful cushions enliven the hospital's family waiting room.

Ennoble v.

To give greater dignity, honor, or moral worth.
Her honest account helped ennoble the overlooked rescue effort.

Enrich v.

To improve quality, meaning, knowledge, or experience.
Public art can enrich an ordinary walk through the city.

Enshrine v.

To preserve and honor something deeply valued.
The charter will enshrine equal access as a basic right.

Ensure v.

To make a desired result certain or secure.

A second check will ensure every name appears correctly.

Entertain v.

To give someone enjoyment or hold their interest.

Local musicians entertain travelers in the station hall.

Enthrall v.

To delight and hold someone's complete attention.

The storyteller could enthrall listeners with a single quiet sentence.

Entrust v.

To give someone responsibility because they are trusted.

The director will entrust Maya with the final safety review.

Equalize v.

To make access, treatment, or opportunity more equal.

Free equipment can equalize participation across the school district.

Evolve v.

To develop gradually into a stronger or more advanced form.

The course will evolve as teachers learn what students need.

Exalt v.

To praise, honor, or raise to greater dignity.

The ceremony will exalt courage expressed through everyday service.

Excel v.

To perform exceptionally well in an activity.

With patient practice, Kira began to excel at public speaking.

Exculpate v.

To clear someone from blame or alleged wrongdoing.

New evidence helped exculpate the volunteer completely.

Exonerate v.

To officially clear someone from blame or accusation.

The independent review may exonerate the wrongly accused driver.

Expedite v.

To make a useful process happen more quickly.

Extra staff will expedite repairs to the damaged homes.

Explore v.

To investigate, travel, or examine with curiosity.

The children used magnifiers to explore the garden soil.

Extol v.

To praise someone or something enthusiastically.

The review chose to extol the cast's warmth and precision.

Exult v.

To feel or show triumphant happiness and delight.

Supporters began to exult when the final result appeared.